

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

Dear colleagues,

We invite you to submit a chapter proposal for our new book project (to be submitted for publication by Routledge):

DOING AGEING RESEARCH TOGETHER: INNOVATIVE PERSPECTIVES ON PARTICIPATORY APPROACHES

The aim of the book is to take a closer look at what it means to do research not only about but with older adults. We aim to explore and investigate the different ways, formats and concepts - such as action research, citizen science, or end-user involvement - in which older adults can become actively involved in and co-create (parts) of the research process.

Consequently, the book will:

- analyse benefits and possible challenges that result from involving older adults as co-creators across the whole research process (from formulating a research question to data analysis)
- showcase projects across different disciplines, domains and jurisdictions that apply different forms of participatory approaches in ageing research,
- discuss what participatory approaches imply for ageing research in particular.

We invite contributions in the following domains:

- 1. Developing research questions together
- 2. Collecting data together
- 3. Analyzing data together
- 4. Validating (getting feedback) results together
- 5. Doing it all together (projects that involved older adults at all stages of the research project)

Please submit your abstract of 250 – 300 words that should outline the content and themes of the proposed chapter and how it may contribute to the book. If your contribution is based on one specific project, please also share a link to the project website.

Please submit your abstract by 31.03.2021.

If you have any questions please don't hesitate to contact us.
